Description

When we install gvSIG 2.3, the installation folder by default is "gvSIG-desktop". It can be dangerous because users usually press "Next" when installing. It would be recommendable to change it. It would be able to be:

gvSIG-desktop_version_BN

for example:

gvSIG-desktop_2.3.0_2415

gvSIG-desktop_2.3.0_RC1

gvSIG-desktop_2.3.0_final

- Target version set to 2.3.0-2447-final (rev. org.gvsig.desktop-2.0.153)

I'm agree with Mario. The installation folder name should contain the version (e.g. gvSIG desktop 2.3.0), just like in the previous major releases, because different gvSIG versions can coexist on the same machine and should not be overwritten accidentally.

- Target version changed from 2.3.0-2447-final (rev. org.gvsig.desktop-2.0.153) to 2.3.0-2418 (rev. org.gvsig.desktop-2.0.124)

He añadido el numero de versión a la carpeta que ofrece por defecto, pero no la etiqueta (RC1, devel, beta1,...) ni el numero de build.

Debería quedar algo como "gvSIG-desktop-2.3.0".
